ABOUT AAST

The American Association of State Troopers, Inc. ("AAST") is a national, fraternal organization composed of active and retired state troopers, highway patrol officers and state police officers. Membership in AAST is voluntary, on an individual basis.

The Association is fraternal in nature and is not a labor union or collective bargaining unit.

MISSION

The Association's purposes specifically include development of strong bonds of nationwide camaraderie, providing benefits for trooper members as well as their families, promotion of professional law enforcement training and educational opportunities, securing financial support to subsidize scholarship grants for trooper members and their dependents, and involvement in public safety and consumer information campaigns.

The American Association of State Troopers is governed by a national board of directors made up of troopers, highway patrol officers, and state police officers from across the country.

AAST FACTS

The American Association of State Troopers provides benefits to members, such as life insurance; up to $2,500 in educational scholarships to qualified members' dependents; and brotherhood assistance to troopers for injury, illness, death, and loss or damage from natural disasters, to themselves or their family members.

The generous contributions from the general public help provide benefits for the members of the American Association of State Troopers. This support is greatly appreciated by those who have served in state public law enforcement positions at their own personal risk on behalf of public safety.
